All American Awareness

ADOLESCENT apprehension typifies those first entering the influential environment of Hickory High. Maturity's plan soon produces mental, social, and personal growth, rounding out individuals who, at the time of departure, leave with increased awareness of themselves.

ALL-AMERICAN patches add color to an officer's uniform and civic pride to his duty.

Gracing everything from store windows to trash cans, signposts to police uniforms—shields, pennants, stickers, and decals simultaneously appeared over the city on March 20, 1968. Official news had proclaimed Hickory an All-America City, and exuberant citizens wasted no time in exhibiting their pride. Co-sponsored by the National Municipal League and LOOK Magazine, this nationally recognized award annually honors eleven cities across the United States for outstanding progress.

Prior to this award, an awareness of both Hickory's potentials and problems was necessary. Likewise this same ALL-AMERICAN AWARENESS penetrates every phase of Hickory High School life. Accenting awareness and emphasizing city-school relationships, the 1969 Hickory LOG reflects the All-American qualities of Hickory mirrored in Hickory High School.

CITIZENS' unwavering efforts materialize into tangible evidence of unity and leadership as John C. Clark presents the coveted All-America City Award to Hickory's Mayor Whitener.

COMMUNITY effort, displayed in cheerleaders' vibrating school spirit, remains the keynote of victory. Representing H.H.S. at out-of-town games, they must possess this quality.

FLANKED BY public officials and dignitaries, Senator Sam Ervin delivers the main address at All-America City Award Celebration

Day. Proud Hickoryites listen attentively as he emphasizes the major factors contributing to the acknowledgment of this distinguished title.

All-America Award Distinguishes City of Hickory, Depicts History of Hickory High

Rigid class schedules crumble with the 3:15 bell when city replaces school as backdrop for student affairs. However, this replacement is never complete. Neither Hickory nor Hickory High can totally displace the influence of the other. Overlapping interests have saturated the fabrication of city and school and yielded unity and cooperation. This coherence fortifies communication between generations of Hickoryites and insures the maintenance of a thriving community.

Hickory's distinction as an All-America City revealed additional constituents of the city-school merger and a mutual awareness. Several achievements accredited Hickory by the All-America City Jury have analogous programs at Hickory High. Two of these, a bi-racial Relations Council and a job counseling service, correspond to the Junior Human Relations Council at H.H.S. and two monthly campus visits by the city job counselor. Cultural expositions, civic projects, and athletic events comprise other dual activities. Consequently, this maxim appears on student report cards and is especially applicable to Hickory High—"A school cannot live apart from the community."

INTONATION and concentration aid James Lowder in both school and city orchestra.

SOLITUDE besets the illumined streets of Union Square as Christmas shoppers return to comforting firesides, leaving behind twinkling lights, tinkling bells, and tinsel showrooms.

JR. Relations Council members M. Hefner, A. Drumheller, G. Johnson formulate ideas.

REFLECTIONS DEEPER than surface appearance captivate senior Jan Trivette as she seeks the winter solitude of a deserted dock on Lake Hickory. Individuals often find that seclusion is necessary to calm distortions of everyday life and to allow a personality to gel.

ELECTION NIGHT vigil occupies Jan Preslar as she abandons thoughts of slumber and watches nation-wide returns and statistics slowly reveal the climax of "Campaign '68."

EXHORTING the merits of her candidate, Barbara Murphy insists "Nixon's The One."

Elections, Vietnam, Apollo Flights — Individuals View 1968-69

Alternately retreating into the shadowed fantasies of childhood, then promptly challenging dimensions yet untried, individuals of Hickory High totter on the brink of adulthood. Living in an accelerated era of unsurpassed technical advancement, and unequalled international strife, it is increasingly difficult for today's youth to distinguish his place in tomorrow. Individual awareness assists in combatting uncertainty, instilling confidence, and spanning the social abyss of adolescence. As student revolts and racial conflicts convulse the world, and traditional beliefs fall prey to the "New Morality" the need for personal convictions intensifies.

Repercussions from international events echo in everyday American life as modern news media focuses the individual in perspective with the plight of people everywhere. Reports from Vietnam, progress in peace talks, and crises in the Middle East and Czechoslovakia all were under student scrutiny as many anticipated the draft and personal involvement. Under equal inspection was the national election and its victor, Richard Nixon. With the celebrated moon flight of Apollo 8, individuals recognized the necessity for a personal awareness which radiates from inner self to outer space.

Curriculum Expansion Broadens Scope of Student Explorations

THUMP . . . WHISH! Donald Gore, Keith Andrews, and Robert Holland use air driven staple guns to complete their upholstery class projects at Catawba Valley Technical Institute

Assorted courses introduced an expanded medium through which Hickory High's populace prepared for future vocations. Initiated this year, upholstery classes at Catawba Valley Technical Institute versed students in a practical skill and produced future employees for Hickory's furniture industry. The installation of IBM equipment prefaced quicker, more efficient school records as well as broadened career possibilities in data processing. A humanities course, in addition to General Math II, embodied other curriculum extensions. Acknowledging the need for an enlarged and more versatile campus, the Hickory School Board continued the planning of a new high school. Thus academic awareness paced educational advancement at Hickory High.

Various City, School Sponsored Activities Balance Hickory High's Academic Agenda

Diversified activities, encompassing the civic, religious, and cultural facets of Hickory, fuse to promote growth of future leaders in an All-America City. As citizens of Hickory, students strive to become recognized in the community by joining clubs which place them in contact with the public. Many of these organizations are branches of civic clubs within the city, such as Junior Civitan, Junior Jaycees, Sub-Juniors, and DeMolay.

Utilizing their time and talent, students contribute to area church work. Candy Stripers, Salvation Army workers, and other service groups find H.H.S. "personne" among their ranks. Other students take advantage of the cultural opportunities in Hickory, including the ballet company, community theater, symphony orchestra, and museum of art. These activities, coupled with a profusion of clubs at H.H.S., provide an almost limitless variety of ways for students to become involved in both city and school.

Gridiron Success. Community Support Dispel 4A Apprehension

Awareness of the individual player, conscious of his responsibilities; awareness of a team intent on winning; and the awareness of a coach, whose judgment juggles victory and defeat—these combined aspects of awareness produce the championship teams associated with Hickory High School. After dominating the Northwestern 3A conference for ten years, Hickory became the seventh member of District Six of the Southwestern 4A conference

Overcoming difficulties of scheduling games, increased traveling distance, and playing new teams, Hickory emerged District Six football champion in its fledgling year of 4A competition

In a year of pronounced change and uncertainty for H.H.S. athletics, the solid support of both the student body and people of Hickory greatly smoothed the conference transition. Inter-city cooperation is best exemplified by the fact that every sport except baseball is played off campus. The golf and tennis teams are allowed access to Lail's Golf Course and the Hickory Foundation Center. College Park Junior High hosts wrestling matches, while football and basketball competition is housed at Lenoir Rhyne College. These facilities permit regulation playing areas, accommodate large crowds of supporters, and constitute a vital ingredient in the Tornado winning tradition

TRANSFORMING open holes in the opponent's line into substantial gains, senior halfback Jimmy Thompson combines power and speed to acquire first down yardage against West

YEARS of perfect behavior have won for HHS publications in All American Medalist and SLP A competitions. TWICE HHS M. K. and D. Jensen admire latest honor.

SCOUTS prepare to host the All America flag to place of honor beneath "Old Glory."

MOLDING the personalities of today's youth, the church plays a major role in formulating student attitudes. Assistant organist at her church, M. L. Sitton contemplates a religious career.

Product of pride and sequel of awareness, honor infiltrates the coalescence of city and school. Hickory's All-American status parallels the many awards merited by Hickory High individuals and groups. Yellowed documents and tarnished trophies contrasted by more recent certificates and glistening cups heighten the legacy of aged halls. These remain as tangible evidence of prowess in athletics and success in literary productions and represent a dedicated motivation toward a common goal. Accepting the challenge of sustaining this honor of H.H.S. is the ultimate responsibility of every student.

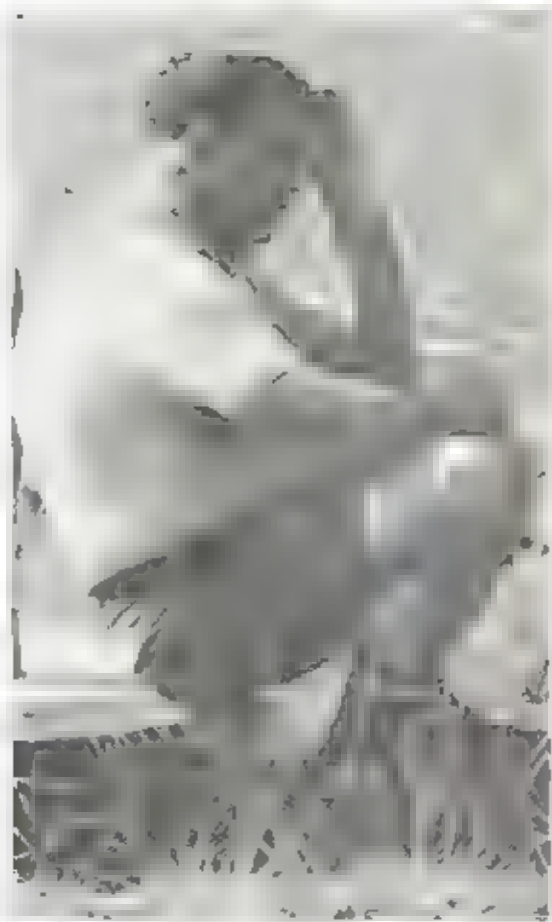

Student Effort Illuminates Main Hallway with Trophies, Honors

FOR THREE fleeting years a student hails the stars as a part of the pulsating crowd. But all too soon the cheering has subsided and suddenly, he is on the outside looking in at the ecstasy that was once a part of him. Only then does he realize the honor of "belonging."

Mr. James Garrett

Intriguing Lecturer and Dynamic Mentor— 1969 Hickory LOG Honors Mr. Garrett

Capturing the hearts and gaining the respect of students and faculty, dedicatee is a multi-talented, dynamic bombshell of energy and joviality. Thought-provoking lectures, taken from a self-composed syllabus, create class enthusiasm. As manager of the Driver Education program, he spends hours scheduling class and car instruction. With a background of athletic excellence in both high school and college, dedicatee has proven a vital component in Hickory High sports. In addition to coaching varsity football and J.V. basketball, he pioneered establishment of wrestling and golf teams.

A prominent figure in the Reformed Church, he teaches an adult Sunday school class. As the need arises he dons pastoral vestments and delivers a sermon which reflects his own moralistic ideas and ideals. A person who believes in 100 per cent effort, he demands perfection of himself and of others. To the master orator; author; philosopher; coach; and All-American teacher, we, the members of the LOG staff, dedicate the 1969 HICKORY LOG to you, Mr. James Garrett.

COMMANDING the Drivers' Training program at H H S., Mr. Garrett spends hours scheduling classes and assigning students to cars and instructors for under the wheel experience

SUCCESSING a routine day of lecturing and paper work, Mr. Garrett abandons the paraphernalia of history to relax among friends via the barbershop sextet, "The Hickory Nuts."

STATISTICAL facts speeded with Garrett philosophy and humor enliven world history.

SCHOOL BOARD AND ADMINISTRATION

Serving as the governing body of the Hickory School System, the School Board and Administration outlined education in the city by careful planning of the future. Blueprints for a new high school included a swimming pool, planetarium, and an auditorium large enough to accommodate the entire student body. Complying with the Peabody Report to the Hickory School System, the Board transformed suggestions into improvements. Education at the present high school was updated with the use of more modern textbooks and instruments. Acknowledging its importance in the All-America City, the School Board and Administration faced the task of making the quality of Hickory's education outstanding.

MR. MILLER holds the respected position of both Hickory High's principal and friend.

PRINCIPAL

Man on the move: Mr. B. E. Miller. As adviser to Inter-Club and the Jr. Human Relations Council, Mr. Miller kept aware of different attitudes and opinions around the school. In addition, he initiated and enforced school policies by discussing all types of student problems. Meeting the issues face to face, Mr. Miller supervised the high school in a calm and understanding manner.

FACED with regular duties, problems, and obstacles in the office of principal, Mr. Miller works at desk, occupied with making changes, solving conflicts, and keeping H. H. S. operating.

OFFICE STAFF

Sounds of ringing telephones, intercom announcements, and clicking typewriters set the scene for activities performed by the staff of the school office. Problems as well as inquiries of the student body were handled with patience and understanding. Preparing absentee reports, supervising school correspondence, and carrying out the duties of receptionists to visitors constituted the daily schedules. Working closely with the principal, the office personnel checked truants and students living outside the school district. Fulfilling both meticulous and routine tasks, members of the office staff rendered indispensable services to the school, to the individual, and to the community.

GUIDANCE DEPARTMENT

Seeking help in various fields of school life, students turned to the Guidance Department for assistance. Seniors found it useful to question the counselors about tuition fees and qualifications needed for entrance to certain colleges. Class ranking gave seniors the opportunity to improve their scholastic evaluation. Managing standardized testing and arranging class schedules became primary duties handled by the Guidance Department. Those who planned to continue their education found counselors stretching out a helping hand to start them off right in society.

LIBRARY

Microfilm, reference books, newspapers—numerous types of material were installed in the library for the sole purpose of aiding in student observations. An efficient and up-dated method of obtaining information from magazines was through usage of microfilm. Reference books provided another area for research; anything from history to science fiction was available. Knowledge on past events was found in old issues of various newspapers. The library was recognized as a vast storehouse containing the bread of knowledge for the student who is reaching for a goal in life.

LUNCHROOM AND MAINTENANCE

Important and appreciated responsibilities of providing well-balanced lunches and keeping clean, well-swept buildings were dutifully taken care of by the lunchroom and maintenance staffs. Under the supervision of a trained dietician, the lunchroom crew prepared meals daily using the best possible methods and ingredients. The maintenance staff was persistent in maintaining orderly rooms, clean restrooms, and keeping heat in the buildings. These staffs gave time and energy to provide for the health and well-being of almost 1460 students and faculty.

COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT

With the arrival of a pace-setting age in modern business, students recognized the need for reliable skills, efficient services, and the deftness with which to perform each in the commercial field. Surroundings of office equipment, resounding sounds, and administrative jargon produced a reasonable facsimile of this competitive vocation which commercial arts pupils prepared to enter. Serving as introductions to business administration were Typing I and II and Bookkeeping I and II. Dictation accompanied shorthand as another fundamental lesson in office tactics. In order to combine applied textbook knowledge with experience, the Cooperative Office Occupation organization was developed to provide students with "on-the-job" training. Carrying the burden of responsibility and well-ripened skills, the participants in the commercial program strove to prepare themselves for a most substantial role in the computerized business world.

Mastering the duties of home management, Homemaking students burned hands and pierced fingers, while Industrial Arts students utilized carpentry skills to construct useful home items. Relieving monotonous schedules, Physical Education classes kept sophomores physically fit for two more years at H.H.S. ENGLISH DEPARTMENT

Attacking grammatical errors, correlating thoughts into the written and spoken word, and traveling through the history of language and literature composed the three-fold purpose of the H.H.S. English Department. Procuring various methods of teaching from past experience, instructors applied the use of audio-visual aids to supplement reading materials. Four teachers attended the National Council of Teachers of English convention in Milwaukee to acquaint themselves with new aspects of the language. A four track division ranging from basic to honors English was adopted for greater individual attention. Such techniques were used to give students the background so vital in self-expression.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE DEPARTMENT

Gay Paris, sunny Spain, and ancient Rome — knowledge of these lands and an understanding of their respective tongues was undertaken by the Foreign Language Department of Hickory High School. Taking great pains and exerting a tremendous amount of patience, teachers attempted to create in their students a desire to become familiar with and finally master a language. The languages offered were French, Spanish and Latin. From each language class a club was formed consisting of the pupils taking and excelling in that particular language. Educational aids such as tapes demonstrating correct pronunciation, and movies and filmstrips about the corresponding countries and their customs helped students learn faster by adding interest and variety to language courses. The language lab was a definite help by placing more individual attention upon struggling pupils who were a part of the Foreign Language Department.

MATHEMATICS DEPARTMENT

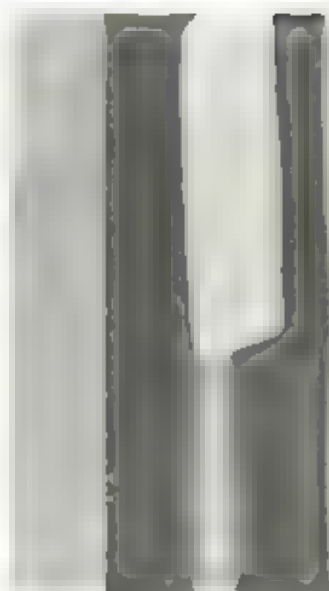

Worlds of numbers fascinated and confused many, as students progressed from general to advanced mathematics at Hickory High. Sophomores tackled geometry with fading enthusiasm, when after mastering countless theorems, they remained baffled by proofs. Developing skills for more advanced study, upper-classmen were faced with other facets of math, including Algebra II, advanced math, and trigonometry. Consumer's math was offered to seniors not planning to attend college. Acknowledging math as a necessity of the future, students acquainted themselves with all phases of the department by incorporating math as a major part of their education

SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

Respiration, oxidation, and ionization—these three words became daily terms upon entering the world of science at Hickory High. Taught in the chronological order of biology, chemistry, and physics, the department took great strides to meet the required demands of the fastest growing area of study. A rigorous summer school program in biology employed the services of five teachers to “melt” the applications of one hundred forty-seven rising sophomores. Chemistry supplied students with an extensive study in various areas of freshman General Science courses, while physics enabled upperclassmen to apply the theories and knowledge acquired during experimental encounters of previous years. From the science curriculum, students gained a basic understanding of life, the universe, and man.

Election Year Brings Opportunity to View History in the Making

SOCIAL STUDIES DEPARTMENT

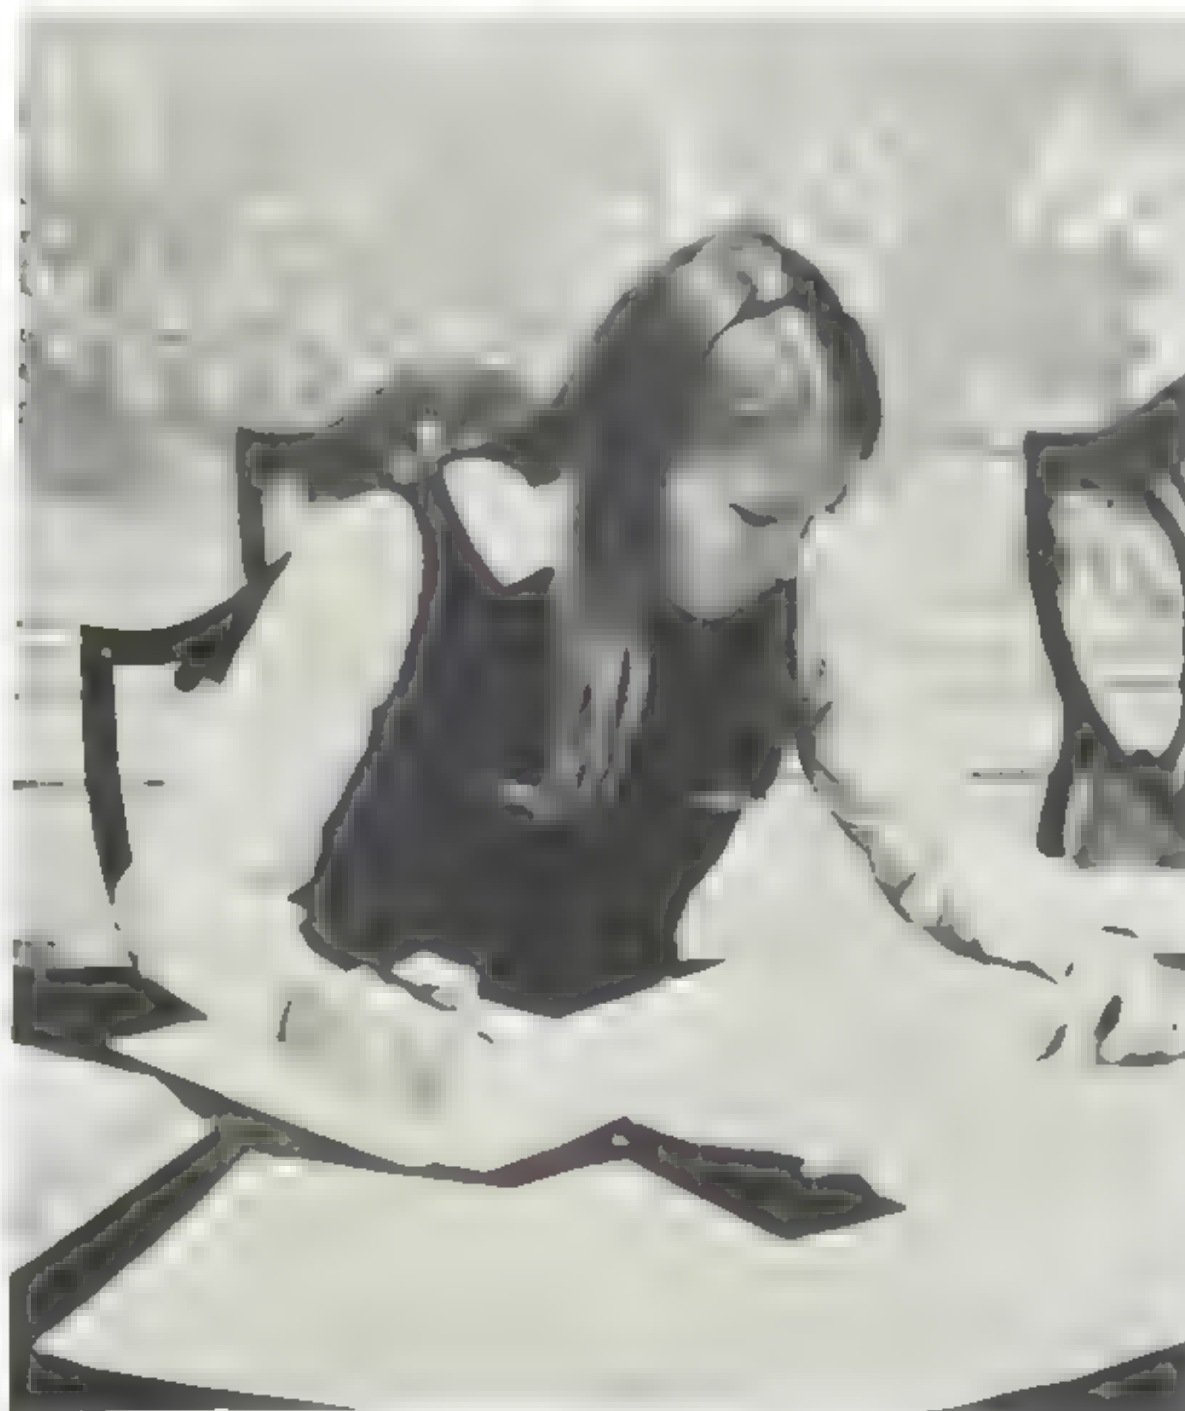

Advancing through the ages from cave man to Vietnam, the Social Studies Department included a broad scope of historical events. The 1968 Presidential elections offered a deeper insight into principles of democracy. National affairs coupled with state and local events informed students of a changing world. Exposed to both wars and elections, all pupils became aware of history-in-the-making

FINE ARTS DEPARTMENT

As brushes, paints, strings, and brass were coupled with toil and sentiment, the talents of novice artists emerged through the fine arts courses. Aspiring young musicians and artists, under the supervision of trained instructors, participated in orchestra, band, art, and chorus programs. Outstanding students in the department engaged in a variety of local and state-wide contests where high ratings were bestowed upon Hickory High groups. Utilizing mediums which ranged from flutes to finger paints, fine arts students exhibited talents which even astonished themselves.

SUMMER SCHOOL

Striving to lighten academic loads of upcoming years, many students attended the H.H.S. summer session. Participants managed to survive the heat and studies by remembering that in only six weeks the struggle would end. Whether correcting a failure or gaining a credit, students supported the program to stay ahead in academic work.

HONORS AND AWARDS

Grasping for the fruits of long practice and diligent study, students at H.H.S. achieved honors and awards in a variety of fields. Scholarships were awarded those who participated actively in club functions, maintained a high scholastic average, and displayed the ability to work well with others. As a result of this consideration, these awards symbolize the achievements of typical students who excelled in areas of scholastic, cultural, and athletic endeavors.

With a hasty farewell to the lazy and working days of summer, Claremont Central flung wide its doors for the forty-fourth time on September 3, 1968. For the 1401 students who relinquished summer memories and mornings of sleep for the all-too-familiar fire escapes, school lunches, and inevitably, homework, a new year began, and with it, all the sensations of belonging to a school. Thus, 1968-'69 was launched.

Almost imperceptibly, autumn descended upon Hickory High School in swirling myriads of falling leaves. Woolens renounced their mothball odor for the crisp, fresh air of fall. Despite a blanketing by the melancholia traditionally associated with this gypsy-flavored season, students continued their frolicking and studying with undampened spirits. Pep rallies mirrored thundering enthusiasm with roars of "Well, No!" and a chorus of bonfire crackles marked the beginning of the end to a successful jaunt with 4A football competition—a first for Hickory High. From the burly linebacker doggedly holding the line to the about-to-go-wild fan, H.H.S.'ers found expression for intangible, uncontrollable spirit of school loyalty and attachment.

Eyelids drooping and fingers numb, weary H.H.S.'ers watched night slip into morning as Homecoming, 1968, arrived. Corridors emptied and streets filled with students eager to view the 98-unit parade inch its way through downtown Hickory. Hopes, cheers, and ability sided with H.H.S. on the gridiron as she romped past the Wilkes Central Eagles to the half-time festivities, when the homecoming court filed out onto the field to shape a "V," foretelling victory for the Tornados. Weeks of preparation for the float competition were climaxed when the band float copped first place. Finally, a radiant Miss Coco Whitener was crowned 1968 Homecoming Queen, and the exultant Hickory squad trounced Wilkes 39-7.

Once on stage, back-stage jitters blossomed into composure as poise and confidence supplemented beauty. Frozen smiles assumed new sparkle and seemingly impossible turns were executed flawlessly under scrutiny of the judges, Mr. and Mrs. J. David Zagaroli and Mr. Robert Stutts. From classical pianists to pop combos, from blaring psychedelic settings to dark shadowy moods, all acts were incorporated in four divisions — classical, traditional, popular, and modern. Finally, the judges announced the winning acts: a classical ballet, a traditional folk duo, a popular male vocal group, and South African exchangee Ensor Transfeldt, leaving the other contestants with a night's experience and the high anticipation of next year's show.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Resembling the mainspring of a clock, Hickory High's Student Council proved essential to smooth school function. In addition to preparing a detailed orientation for rising sophomores, providing a post-game meal for football players, and polishing the school's trophies, the Student Council served as host for a divisional workshop. The fall workshop better acquainted Council members of surrounding areas with more efficient ways to serve both school and community. In keeping with tradition, members sponsored the annual College Day, which acquainted students with various colleges; the Talent Show, which displayed the hidden talents of students; and Homecoming activities, the largest in the history of H.H.S., including a ninety-six unit parade and elaborate half-time festivities. Also on the agenda of this organization's activities were controlling student parking and conducting elections for Homecoming, Jr.-Sr., Carrousel queens and class officers. Another important project was serving as overseer of all clubs and correlating all their activities. In short, the Student Council kept the clockwork of Hickory High in running order.

Working under the supervision of Principal Miller, the council's main objective was to offer a general organization and unity of Hickory High's staffs and clubs. Among its duties were to set standards for clubs to follow, to assist in planning Homecoming festivities, and to relieve problems around the school. An organizational club, the Inter-Club Advisory Council strove for the improvement of H.H.'s extracurricular activities.

Opening the door to communication, the Homeroom Representatives acted as the middle men between the student body and the Student Council. Student complaints and suggestions concerning school policies were brought to the attention of the council by these representatives. By selecting Students of the Month, manning the lunch money lending station, conducting elections in their homerooms, patrolling the lunch lines, and assisting in College Day, these leaders lightened the load of the Student Council. Forming the lower house of the school government, they kept the gateway between service and communication functioning.

HALL MONITORS

"Keep to the right!" was the command frequently shouted by Hickory High's patrolmen, the Hall Monitors. Resembling policemen during rush hour, these monitors regulated the flow of hall traffic. The elimination of confusion and the prevention of running, pushing, and smoking in the corridors were the duties of the monitors. Names of frequent offenders were recorded by these seniors, posted in the halls and on the fire escapes. Chosen on the basis of character and scholastic standing, the hall monitors were respected as the "hall cops" of Hickory High School.

QUILL AND SCROLL

Tension mounted as the lights dimmed, a hush crept over the audience, and the curtains unveiled the beginning of final competition for the title of Miss Hickory High. Sponsored by the Quill and Scroll, this pageant provided the money needed for carrying out their numerous activities, which included sending delegates to the S.I.P.A. convention in Lexington, Virginia, and awarding journalism scholarships at the annual Quill and Scroll banquet. Outstanding H.H.S. staff members were awarded pins and trophies at the banquet also.

Identifying this society with its title was the traditional HICKORY DAILY RECORD Day. Manning pens and typewriters of the RECORD staff, Quill and Scroll members performed the daily duties of writers and editors. Assembling a scrapbook composed of newspaper clippings publicizing school events, the Quill and Scroll terminated their journalistic accomplishments for the 1968-1969 school year.

"What do you think of sideburns? Why do you go to the 'Rebel'? What is your opinion of flower stickers?" Ridiculous as well as serious answers to these questions were encountered by members of the TWIG staff as they went among the student body seeking quotes for feature articles. Besides unique opinion polls, the TWIG covered news from every branch of the school, its students, and their activities.

Distribution of the bi-weekly newspaper reached beyond the student body to surrounding businesses which helped finance the publication through ads. Desiring new and better ideas, TWIG delegates attended Southern Interscholastic Press Association and Columbia Scholastic Press Association. With an eye for novel articles and hopes of becoming a weekly paper, the TWIG staff strove to keep up with the pace of Hickory High.

LOG

Saks Fifth Avenue, Radio City, Statue of Liberty, subway rides, a Broadway play—all were a part of the LOG trip to New York where seniors attended Columbia Scholastic Press Association. Lectures and demonstrations equipped members with ideas to make the most of their new three column layout. Taking informal club shots and pictures for the advertising section were additional duties for LOG photographers. Tedious hours in the darkroom augmented normal duties of capturing school activities on film and produced prints of superior quality. After many hours of writing and rewriting copy, checking and rechecking layouts, and frequent trips for soliciting ads, the 1969 LOG captured the All-American aura of city and school.

CHORUS

"Fanfare for Christmas" drifted from the chorus room. In October? Yes, in October. Accompanied by trumpets, vocalists practiced through the fall months for perfection of their Christmas program. Under the direction of Mrs. Barnhill, the chorus anticipated the Mars Hill Workshop, the Greensboro Music Festival, and the Charlotte Choral Contest. Exceptionally talented singers formed a select group, the Ensemble, which performed for area events. A cross-section of songs, ranging from popular to religious, broadened their scope of music. Encouraging attendance to a summer workshop, the chorus illustrated its desire for singers to continue their musical interest year-round.

Soap suds and water splashed on old blue jeans and bare feet during a car wash sponsored by the Hickory High Band. Money from this venture and from the sale of heavy duty cleanser enabled all band members, from Drum Major to flag corps, to don striking new uniforms of red, white and black. Under the leadership of a new director, Mr. Taylor, the brilliant colors and flashing brass combined to spur school spirit and send Tornadoes on to victory. Popular songs joined the famed "Hail to the Varsity" to spice up games and pep rallies. Combining originality with ingenuity, the band created the winning homecoming float. Similar to its theme, "Victory in All Fields," the band, through concerts, parades, and team support, illustrated its desire to display school spirit in every conceivable way.

Harmonious strains of a folk song faded into silence as the final applicant completed his audition for admission into the Folk Music Club. Eager to improve, the club strove to polish their style through practice and self-criticism. Historians may have guessed the prelude to a medieval battle, but in actuality the members of the H.H.S. Chess Club had merely met to match individual board strategy. Competition within the club heightened as members vied with one another for Chess team positions and the high honor of representing Hickory at the Charlotte and Winston-Salem conventions. Inter-school matches kindled interest in the most famous of all board games.

Mumbling ceased, the gavel pounded as the list of first year Latin students dwindled and masters anticipated their slave's week of service. After two days of humiliating dress and complying to master's whims, slaves rejoiced at the end of "Slave Week." Com-binning fun with helping others, members caroled in hospital corridors and school halls and made Christmas cards for the sick. Romantic verse in the ancient language printed on heart-shaped cards brightened Valentine's Day for invalids in hospitals.

Youth for Christ Club Combines Talent of Vocalists, Instrumentalists—Sing-out '68

YOUTH FOR CHRIST

ENTERTAINING their thoroughly satisfied diners, members of the Youth for Christ Club complete their delightful program, Sing Out '68, after serving a delicious hamburger supper.

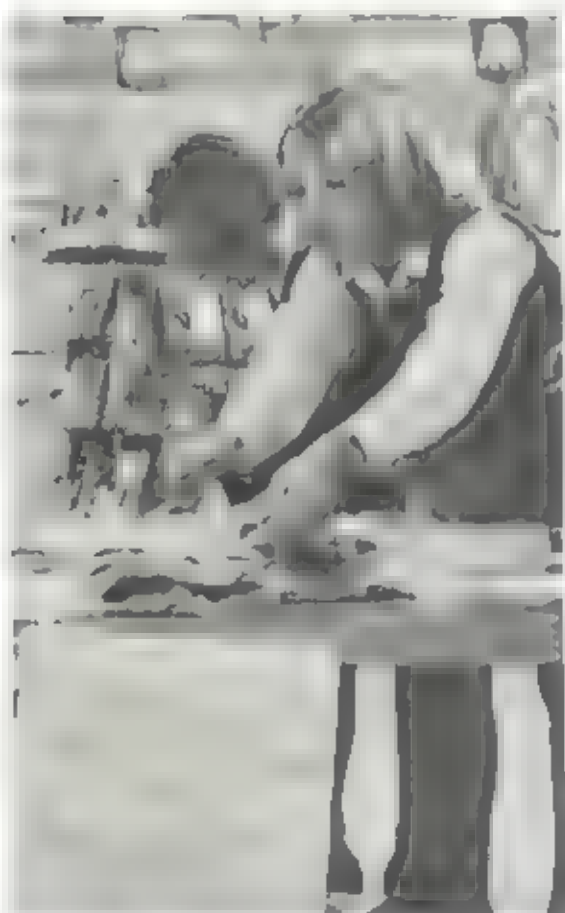

Daring man-hunts, swinging pillow fights, sizzling hamburger suppers—these were a few of the venturesome activities sponsored by Hickory High's Youth for Christ Club. Each escapade was organized to include club members as well as any interested Hickory High students. The sponsorship of such academic entertainment amassed organizational funds. Primarily concerned with improved campus life, Youth for Christ enabled young people to become better citizens by combining a unique assortment of fun with balanced living and a Christian look at their fellowmen.

Heart Fund and Veteran's Day Obligations Consume Time and Energy of Sub-Juniors

SUB-JUNIOR WOMEN'S CLUB

"Thirty - six, twenty - four — hike!" The snap, the pass, and a touchdown brought Hickory High's Sub-Junior fans to their feet. As the clock clicked off the final seconds of the powderpuff football game, accumulated profits were counted. Supplemented by funds from candy and bake sales, this money helped sponsor the Sub-Junior Christmas dance. Monthly, club members traveled to Western Carolina Center. Extending this willingness to give some of their time and effort to help people, members sold poppies on Veteran's Day and collected donations for the Heart Fund. Affiliated with the Junior Women's Club, this organization patterned its activities after civic work of its mother club.

BUS DRIVERS

Misty morning hours found twelve figures arising while most students still snuggled in warm beds. This dozen bus drivers unflinchingly proceeded on their daily routine of transporting the city's students between home and school. Blustering snow and freezing rain, stimulants of hazardous driving conditions, were combatted with windshield wipers, chains, and reduced speed. Prudence and patience recognized these bus drivers as one of the safest bus transportation systems in the state.

PEP CLUB

"We've got the spirit that a great team needs, it's grr . . . eat!" Through thunderous cheers and lively songs, members of the Pep Club instilled enthusiasm at sports events. Responsible for inventing original ways to inspire "soul," members utilized signs to support school spirit. A recent complement to school organizations, this cheering crew traveled as representatives of the student body to out-of-town tangles. Efforts of its members unified this group into a soul organization with a sole purpose: spirit.

DISTRIBUTIVE EDUCATIONAL CLUBS OF AMERICA

Money jingled into the open cash register of the newly opened school store, a satisfied student hurried to class with a needed school supply, and a D.E.C.A. member gained another link in his chain of business experience. D.E.C.A. offered students an opportunity to continue their education and occupy part-time jobs in the retail, service, and distributive fields. Participation in district contests, including competition in sales demonstrations, public speaking, and Miss D.E.C.A., provided added incentive for becoming better skilled in work areas. Candy sales equipped the treasury with means to carry out activities. Highlighting the year was the bosses' banquet where employers were recognized for their contribution to the program. In short, for local businessmen D. E. C. A. made sense; potential business leaders were trained; for its members, D.E.C.A. made cents; students earned cherished paychecks while gaining experience.

Bells rang, corridors emptied, nerves of future teachers tensed as classrooms filled, and F.T.A. day began. Assuming the roles of teachers for a day, members of the club terminated a year of filing, typing, and recording grades for Hickory High's teachers. National Education Week gave members an opportune time to honor teachers and parents with an informal tea following an open house where parents had a chance to talk with teachers. Participation in this organization allowed students to visualize themselves as prospective future teachers of America

Brand new from the junk pile, a green, paint-chipped auto was put to the mercy of H.H.S. For twenty-five cents, spirit-minded youth pounded a sledge hammer on the car representing Ashley's Green Waves. Besides raising funds, the car encouraged participation in pre-game activities. New members, after surviving the required initiation of wearing old clothes to school and soliciting shoeshines, began work immediately by selling pennants. Laughing couples enjoyed the romantic atmosphere of the hayride. Attending a convention in Charleston, South Carolina, the young men of this club endeavored to become better citizens.

Displaying excitement through sparkling eyes and expressing joy by means of an illuminated face, a small boy marvelled at the brimming contents of his Christmas stocking. Such satisfaction was the result of a project where Future Business Leaders of America collected toys for the Salvation Army. Providing a teacher secretarial service, members were able to gain additional practice in skills of typing and operating office machinery. Monthly meetings featured speakers from different areas of the business world, and was at one time highlighted with the appearance of Miss F.B.L.A. of the United States. In an effort to continue their status quo of a first place scrapbook, future business leaders collected a wide assortment of business material. The project impressed new ideas about business in their minds while at the same time recorded data for upcoming members.

Rolling out the carpet, the risers, and hanging gilded jewels, Art Club members prepared the "Hall of Elegance" for beauty contestants. Entrancing every couple at the Junior-Senior with the beauty of "King Arthur's Court," through flashing swords and flags, and brightening the school's halls with painted murals relating to school activities, the club further used its artistic skill in interior decorating. Utilizing their time and talent for the benefit of fellow students, these promising young Rembrandt's artists embellished annual school events.

Dramatic gestures, appropriate pauses, forceful expressions, and well-planned arguments produced winning debates for H.H.S.'s debating team. To help them prepare for their debating theme of "Selective Service System," members traveled to Chapel Hill to audit a series of lectures. In preparation for its matches with other schools, the society held a "round-robin" among its own members. JR. CIVITAN

Weary arms ringing tinkling bells were rewarded as a passerby dropped money into the red Salvation Army kettle and two Junior Civitan members smiled a "Thank you." Witnessing the Christmas spirit, members offered their services to maintain the special booths downtown for a day. Thanksgiving also provided an opportunity for the club to serve others. By collecting food for a needy family members were able to share their good fortune with those less fortunate than they. A fall afternoon found Junior Civitans promoting a civic organization, the Arts Council, by selling balloons downtown. Even homecoming provided a chance for community service as the club, through their float, urged people to vote. The sale of football cushions as well as fruitcakes provided the funds to support their activities, showing their concern for the community.

Fascinated by the complex blood testing apparatus in the autopsy room, Chemistry Club members witnessed one of the modern devices used by the laboratory at Catawba Memorial Hospital. Exploring the methods and instruments employed by lab technicians of the new hospital, the club observed the practical application of chemistry in medicine. Enlightened by their own experience, high-ranking advanced chemistry students established a tutoring system to aid any struggling first-year chemist. Reaching beyond the flaming bunsen burners, tinkling test tubes, and rising ring stands of chemistry class, the club sought to associate members with the practical use of chemistry in their everyday lives.

Goat Riding Kicks Initiated Members Into Community Servitude

GARBAGE-LADEN FIELDS become transformed into attractive scenic areas as R. Hemp, R. Sain, and L. Datnoff assume maintenance roles in DeMolay's clean-up campaign.

DEMOLAY

Shakily dismounting a goat, an initiate stepped into the group of civic-minded young men of the order of DeMolay. Beginning community activities, members visited a children's hospital ward. January Saturdays found them policing the city for evidence of "litter bugs." Extending their civic work beyond their own community, members aided the February Heart Fund Drive. March ushered in DeMolay month and the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the order. This month included DeMolay Week consisting of a planned activity for every day of the week, highlighted by taking over a day as the top city officials and climaxed by a dance. As the year waned, members proudly recalled their contributions to an All-American city.

FIERY school spirit blazes from crimson flames as a lone cheerleader urges victory

SHOUTS of victory echo from S. Houston and C Mitchell and arouse Tornado spirit

DELIVERING AN AROUSING pre-game speech, R. Gilliam exemplifies the school's desire for another Tornado victory as lettermen participate in the pep rally following "Law Day."

LETTERMEN'S CLUB

Burgundy and gold shakers rustled the cheers as standing spectators pulled for the Tornadoes. Made available by the Lettermen's Club, the shakers were sold to arouse team support. Having earned letters in different sports, members further showed their athletic interest by ushering at football games and selling patches. Sponsoring the first Awards Day in the history of H.H.S. which recognized outstanding performance in every field, Lettermen exemplified the good sportsmanship shown in their own athletic competition. Assisting willingly with Law Day, Lettermen showed their desire to extend the respect for rules and order which they had gained through participating in sports.

COACHES

Hurrying to give a last minute pep talk, coaches instilled within their players a sense of pride and a desire to give their utmost effort for a Hickory High victory. As play began, they saw their long, difficult hours of selecting teams and running drills materialize into a team composed of vigorous contenders. After a victory or one of their infrequent losses, coaches were always the first to recognize outstanding individual performances and point out mistakes. Immediately after that comeback or last second heart breaker, they began to look toward the future and plan for that all important upcoming game. Through a high percentage of wins, Hickory High's coaches proved to be outstanding directors during their first year in 4A competition.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

Combating their newly acquired 4A opponents with speedy runners, a rugged defense, and depth, the Red Tornadoes won the Division 6 Conference title in their first year of competition. After defeating old rival Gastonia Ashley in the opener and tying the Indians of West Mecklenburg, the Varsity won five consecutive gridiron contests, highlighted by a victory over previously undefeated South Mecklenburg. The encounter with Patrick Henry of Roanoke, Virginia, marked the first interstate competition ever for the schools. Defeat at the hands of the Garinger Wildcats forced the conference lead into a three-way tie, but a brilliant victory over Independence sent the Tornadoes into the play-offs against Pisgah of Canton, whom they beat in the final minutes of the game, 16-14. Revenge then took a heavy toll upon the Hickory drive as Gastonia Ashley crushed the Tornado running attack and beat them, 28-7. Ashley later lost to North Carolina defending champs, Wilson Fike.

TESTIMONY to Hickory depth is Rick Berry, whose ability sparks Hickory drives.

PLAY-OFFS

Given little chance by many dubious local supporters, the Tornadoes proved them wrong by defeating Independence, 34-0, clinching the championship of District Six and the right to compete in the state play-offs. Hickory's first encounter in play-off competition was decided in the fourth quarter by David Williams' 26-yard field goal, giving Hickory a 16-14 victory over Pisgah of Canton. However, Hickory found the going rougher against the potent Green Wave of Ashley. The much improved Ashley offense, engineered by Gastonia quarterback Spurgeon Mackie and his option play, saw the Tornadoes fall prey to a 28-7 defeat.

J. V. FOOTBALL

Through vigorous and thorough practices, the J.V.s came through with a winning season. Veteran coaches David Craft and Mark Lyerly were assisted by John Kauffman, a former college stand-out, in formulating basic offensive patterns for upcoming games. The peak of the season came with high scoring defeats of Wilkes Central, South Mecklenburg, and Hunter Huss after the Jr. Tornados beat Harding in the opener. End Robert Carson and quarterback Richard Dula teamed up for a total of 61 points, leading the scoring department. Positions on the varsity squad were aspirations of team members at the close of the season.

THEIR LEAD CUT in half, Hickory pauses during a time out to scrap their collapsing zone and make assignments for a man-to-man defense just in time to quell a West Charlotte rally

VARSITY BASKETBALL

Facing the renowned basketball teams of the Southwestern Conference for the first time, the Tornadoes gave away rebounding height and had to rely on outside scoring and the percentage shot. However, Hickory's explosive fast break, aided by the deadly shooting of forwards Gary Stafford and Dave Miller, kept their adversaries always alert. Supported by a deep bench, the starters were often substituted by Coach Lyerly to rest and instruct them during numerous close contests. Beating and being beaten, the Tornadoes erratically exchanged victories and defeats with opponents to finish with a 6-4 division record and 12-8 overall. After overcoming West Charlotte, the Tornadoes were edged out in their second round of tournament play by Ashley in a one-point hair-splitter.

J. V. BASKETBALL

Competent shooting sparked by an alert defense led the Junior Varsity to their first 4A Conference Basketball title. With the loss of only one conference game, the team, led by guard Jackie Robinson and center Phillip Gillingham, accumulated a 15-7 record. The high point of the season came in the game against East Mecklenburg in which the J.V.'s secured a 79-29 victory. With the win of eleven conference games, an outstanding season came to a shocking halt with the loss to North Mecklenburg in the first round of tournament play.

Sandtraps, lakes, and hilly fairways all provided obstacles to be conquered by the Hickory High golf team. Undaunted by schoolwork, the elements, or the absence of an available practice course, the determined golfers concentrated on bettering their form, improving their overall game, and lowering their scores through consistent practice. Despite winning only one of six contests, members of the team began to show a marked increase in proficiency at golf basics with team scores improving with each successive match. Individual scores dropped with many approaching the season's low of 77 which was turned in by Brent Rozzelle. Gary Lawson distinguished himself at the Association match by finishing near the top contenders.

Using a trio of hard hitting seniors as the centerpiece of attack, Coach Jack Daughtrey again piloted the H.H.S. tennis team to a successful season. The netters tallied a 9-2 regular season record, losing twice to the powerful Shelby Lions. Other opposing teams found the winning trail rough and often scored only one point against the varsity six. Setting a new doubles record, the Tornadoes went through the entire season with only three defeats coupled with 30 victories. Post-season play-offs saw the Hickory team place second in the Bi-Conference Tournament at Shelby. Qualifying five netters in that event, the Tornadoes went on to the Association meet and finished fourth in a strong field behind Shelby, Lexington, and Asheboro.

The Senior Class

As awaiting candidates for the adult society, the patriarchal members approached the final stage of their ordeal with apprehension and tearful solace. Many were entrusted with the responsibility of forming the backbone of staffs and organizations. Class officers acquired chartered buses for distant football games.

With college boards and the nerve-racking experience of awaiting college or university replies behind, senior week arrived; time filled with old memories. And even with the careful contrivances to prepare for the impending, unforgettable ceremony, the prearranged designs and choreography were of small benefit. The emotional state of tears, happiness, and regret reigned when accepting the symbol of their terminating incumbency.

The Junior Class

Grasping the torch of the awaiting world, the second-string members of Hickory High strove to earn recognition in the fields which were now their right. Accepting the responsibilities of driver's licenses, positions on staffs, Merit Tests, College Board Examinations, and the planning and financing of the Jr.-Sr. instilled perseverance and determination into the members of the junior class. Time yielded the selection of Junior Marshals and climaxed a year of incessant memories with graduation, now the middleman's chief objective.

The Sophomore Class

Questioning faces and wondering expressions were prominent among sophomores as the newest addition to Hickory High strove to adjust to its new environment. After the confusion of registration, sophomores began exploring the corridors, classrooms, and labs of H.H.S. Learning to cope with the new curriculum and old traditions, asserting themselves in staffs and clubs, and "holding their own" at pep rallies were the first steps in becoming a part of the student body of Hickory High. Evolving from the awe of unfamiliar surroundings to the calmness of common occurrence, the sophomores became the starting point of another graduating class.

Christmas Vacation Provides Students with Much Needed Break

SHOPPERS TAKE a prolonged and surprising visit to town and onlookers search the crowds for a visible view of the marching band during parade segment of Homecoming festivities.

Turnmyre, S. Fanjoy, D. Trexler, B. Terrell, and B. Sutton look on as their biology instructor "dissects" the cake made by the class.

WHY DREXEL?

ASK GARY HERMAN
HE'LL TELL YOU.

Meet Gary Herman. Chances are you may already know Gary. He's a popular young man. But if you don't let us tell you something about him. After graduating from Hickory High, Gary enrolled at North Carolina State University. Completing four years of intensive study, he graduated with a Bachelor's Degree in Furniture Manufacturing and Management. As his college days were ending, Gary had the opportunity to do an extensive amount of interviewing, talking with several firms in different areas of the country. He chose DREXEL ENTERPRISES.

Since joining DREXEL, Gary's career has been rapid. He started out in DREXEL'S Manufacturing Management Training Program. This was interrupted by a six month tour with the U.S. Air Force. When he returned to DREXEL, he was assigned to the Sales Offices of SOUTHERN DESK Company. When he had a chance to work first hand in another important phase of company activity, after a year in Sales, he was promoted to the job of Production Expeditor in the Manufacturing Division of SOUTHERN DESK. And then, in a few short months, he moved to his present position of Assistant Plant Manager of one of the company's larger operations here in Hickory.

Why did Gary choose DREXEL? If the above paragraphs didn't give you a hint, ask Gary. He'll tell you.

PLAY More—LIVE Longer

On the Ides of March, 44 BC, Julius Caesar, standing on the steps of the Senate, saw Brutus approaching. Assuming his friend would like a refreshing drink of ice-cold Coca-Cola, Caesar called out, "Et tu Brute?" meaning, "You want some, too, Kiddo?" Unfortunately, Brutus had flunked Latin, and, thinking he'd been insulted, immediately slew Caesar, speaking the immortal words, "Res melius evinissent cum Coke," a translation of which appears below.

"Things would have gone better with Coke."

Reddy To Rock

Reddy Kilowatt never misses a party. In fact, without him, things would be pretty dull. Think of it; no stereos, televisions, electric guitars or ice cubes.

Thanks to Reddy there are over 160 flameless electric servants that make modern living comfortable, economical and fun. When you have a home of your own, there will probably be even more.

25 Years of Service Distinguish Maintenance Head Albert Reed

TAKING a message, Albert Reed answers a late call before closing up H.H.S. for the night.

When light bulbs flicker, blinds break, or one of the inevitable student accidents occur, maintenance head Albert Reed becomes most wanted man on campus. From the massive job of fall face lifting H.H.S. to the final wax job prefacing summer vacation, Albert has witnessed the passage of twenty-five classes through the hallways of Hickory High. In addition to routine clean-up, he can be counted on to unlock rooms for forgetful students and teachers, and to relieve emergencies whether the requisite be ladder or mop. Through years of faithful service, Albert has established himself as an integral part in the operation of Hickory High.

Editor's Last Word

Idealists, conformists, rebels, romantics, scholars, athletes—Hickory High poses a kaleidoscope of personalities. They laugh, love, cry, cheer, study, learn, wonder, smile, run, write, and discover, as they dabble in rainbow emotions and in the process gain a spectrum of experience. A miniature world, Hickory High reflects the ideals, prejudice, turmoil, and progress, of a community, a world, a time. The pressures, problems, and decisions her students face are very real, just as real as their happiness, joys, and dreams.

All-American Awareness entangling city, school, and student is magnified in the 1969 Hickory LOG. Years from now may sunlight smiles once again shatter your pool of consciousness with splashing memories of three of the happiest, the saddest, and undoubtedly the most mixed-up moments of your life; and may the motto of Hickory's official seal prove true of each divergent path taken in the future.
